MLK Day activities planned for next week

BY BOB DEMAREE

Martin Luther King Jr. Day will be observed next week with special events in Jefferson County on the national holiday, which will be Monday, Jan. 15 as well as throughout the week.

This year marks the 40th anniversary of President Ronald Reagan signing the bill into law in 1983 to create Martin Luther King Jr. Day to honor the Civil Rights leader with a holiday on the third Monday in January.

On Monday, there will be a Dr. Martin Luther King Day Celebration at Trinity United Methodist Church, 412 West Main St., Madison, with program beginning at noon. There will be a video presentation about Dr. King at 11:30 a.m.

The Rev. Dr. Bruce Rose will have a message titled "Where Do We Go From Here?" Rose has served as pastor of Second Baptist Church in Bloomington, Indiana, since 2003. In 2016, Rose assumed the leadership role for the restoration of an endangered historic site that had been the First Baptist (Colored) Church of West Baden Springs. It is now known as the First Missionary Baptist Church of West Baden.

Several songs honoring Martin Luther King Jr. will be sung with soloists the Rev. Harvey Leggett, pastor of Broadway Baptist Church, and Helen Mumphrey of Carrollton. Yvonne Davis will accompany on piano. Students from the Mayor's Eagles at Lydia Middleton Elementary School will recite their "dream". There will also be a presentation by Madison Consolidated High School student Kyle Roney.

The program is sponsored by Jen Era Jeff No. 44 Order of Eastern Star and Eureka Lodge No. 30. Homemade soup and sandwiches will be served after the event and sack lunches will be available for those needing to return to work.

Also, on Monday in honor of the Martin Luther King Jr. holiday, Historic Madison Inc. will have two free tours — at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. — at Dr. William Hutchings' Office. Visitors are encouraged to meet their guides

Hanover hires founding dean for veterinary school

Dr. Christina Tran to begin work Feb. 5

BY BOB DEMAREE

Hanover College has hired Dr. Christina Tran as the founding dean for its School of Veterinary Medicine and Doctor of Veterinary Medicine Program in which work is underway for accreditation and planning for the construction of facilities.

The selection of Tran was announced last week, just prior to Hanover College's presentation on the veterinary school at Friday's meeting of the Our Southern Indiana Regional Development Authority meeting.

Christina Tran

Dr. Lake Lambert, president of Hanover College, laid out details of the college's Doctor of Veterinary Medicine (DVM) program that is in conjunction with Ivy Tech Community College Madison's associate degree level veterinary nursing program pending accreditation approval.

The veterinary school is expected to have $16.5 million in facilities and operational start-up costs which includes construction/renovation and furnishing of buildings on the Hanover College campus in addition to the hiring of doctoral-level faculty and associated staff.

The project was awarded a $5.9 million grant in 2022 through OurSIRDA after the region received $50 million from the state's Regional Economic Acceleration and Development Initiative (READI). That funding will pay for the anatomy facility. The overall cost for the new veterinary facilities is expected to be $12,225,000.

Lambert said the college is receiving a $1,250,000 donation from a Hanover College trustee and expects $2,100,000 from new tax market credits, which Lambert said the town of Hanover is eligible based on the income of the community. The remaining $2,975,000 in facility costs will come through additional fundraising efforts, grants and long-term debt.

There will also be additional operational start up costs that the college will look for ways to defray, or absorb, if needed.

Cross Plains man charged with attempted murder in Madison shooting

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Madison Police are investigating a shooting that wounded local man over the weekend after an alleged ongoing dispute with a family member turned violent on Saturday night.

The local dispatch received a call that a 34-year-old man had been shot in the back of the head in the area of the Windridge Apartments on Madison's hilltop at about 8:30 p.m. on Saturday, Jan. 6. When police arrived they found a man with a gunshot wound but the suspect had already left the area.

According to Madison Police, the victim received medical treatment and is expected to recover.

Investigating officers quickly developed a suspect and determined that the shooting was an isolated but targeted incident. The suspect developed by MPD detectives was identified as Mark Nelson Swafford, 43, of the Cross Plains, Indiana, area.

Mark Nelson Swafford

"It wasn't a random shooting. It was a family dispute that I think carried over from the days prior," Madison Police Chief Shawn Scudder told members of the Madison Board of Public Works and Safety at their meeting on Monday. "The suspect lived in Cross Plains ... We went to his residence to try to locate him and it ended up a pursuit with a crash, and was taken under custody without injury. He's currently in jail on attempted murder charges."

Swafford is facing preliminary charges of Attempted Murder, a Level 1 felony; Aggravated Battery, a Level 3 felony; and Battery, a Level 5 felony and is being held without bail.

"We are pleased to have made an arrest in this case and are grateful for the assistance of our law enforcement partners," said Scudder, a former detective who was in his fourth day as police chief after the retirement of John Wallace. "We want to reassure the public that we take all crimes seriously and will work tirelessly to bring those responsible to justice."

Anyone with further information about the incident is encouraged to contact the Madison Police Department at 812-265-3347. The investigation is being led by Det. Kyle Cutshaw, who was assisted by the Jefferson County Sheriff's Department, Ripley County Sheriff's Department, Indiana State Police, Ripley County EMS, and the Friendship Indiana Volunteer Fire Department.

Restoration issues impacting PACE grant timelines

BY BOB DEMAREE

Madison Mayor Bob Courtney told the Board of Public Works and Safety on Monday that the complexity of restoring some deteriorated historic structures in Madison could necessitate the city reevaluating its PACE guidelines for such properties.

The subject came up after requests for PACE extensions for two properties on Walnut Street for structures that have received $25,000 dilapidated structures grants — 707 Walnut Street that was purchased by Cornerstone after it was determined to have once been the property of William Anderson, one of the major underground railroad conductors in Madison and the nation, and 821 Walnut Street, owned by Dana Lemon.

PACE guidelines require that work on projects begin within 90 days following approval by BPWS and be completed within one year. The 707 Walnut Street extension request was for a year and the 821 Walnut Street request was for six months. BPWS granted extensions but for only six months to 707 Walnut Street and until March 10 for 821 Walnut Street because BPWS wants updates.

Courtney said for most properties the PACE time line has worked well "but for some of these more complicated ones, honestly it's too quick of a window. It's complicated," he said, noting that with properties he's been involved in rehabilitating there have been times "you discover a lot more deterioration when you finally get in there and removing elements of the building. It ends up much more comprehensive reconstruction rather than rehabilitation."

County attorney Joe Jenner said that when that happens it not only challenges the property owner in achieving restoration but "it's also tough on the city's side because it encumbers the money for that."

"What we need is a plan" for the city to consider purposely extending time lines for PACE structures with more challenging deterioration, Courtney said. "That's been the whole foundation of our dramatically increasing incentives and also investing in code enforcement so we can put together a plan because before it was with-the-wind and that doesn't produce a result."

"The more complicated ones, I think it is worth reevaluating our guidelines for the unsafe structures because they don't fit neatly into that rehabilitation box for a year," Courtney added. "Generally a year would be sufficient but when you're really doing reconstruction, particularly in this environment, it could take a lot longer."

Link Ludington, president of Cornerstone, said 707 Walnut Street "has been in horrible condition for many, many years, and has not been occupied for a long time." After acquiring the property, Cornerstone has cleaned out, stabilized and reinforced the structure, along with coordinating with the property owner at 705 Walnut Street because the two buildings are attached and have a roof drainage problem between the two buildings that they are working to resolve.

Ludington said Cornerstone has also been involved in restoring 815-817 West Second Street "which is also a severely deteriorated structure that the more we got into it, the more we found it was like the Anderson house. We knew it was bad going in, but turned out to be much worse than we thought."

"I like the work you're doing in saving both of these structures," said Courtney. However, he emphasized the need for safety to prevent entry into the properties that may be unsafe until rehabilitated. Assurances were given by Dennis Webster, the contractor for both Cornerstone projects, and Ludington with fencing and other measures.

Debra Beemon who lives at 709 Walnut Street next door to the William Anderson house, said she's concerned about the safety at 707 Walnut Street, stating there have been "kids climbing that fence that I have had to say, 'Get off the fence.' "

She also noted that even with the fence there "have been homeless people in the back … This has been going on for year," she said. "There is no urgency whatsoever … I just want to see something done, some actual proof they are actually going to do something."

Courtney said the goal of the city is "abating the unsafe nature of the structure. Like with a lot of properties that have dilapidated over a long period of time and not maintained or cared for, it takes a long time to correct those deficiencies." He said in that neighborhood on Walnut Street, "there's a concentration of unsafe, unrepaired, dilapidated properties" which "we're working really hard to correct that."

Dana Lemon, property owner of 821 Walnut Street, said progress on the property was delayed due to health issues by her husband and herself, but they were both doing well now and ready to move forward. She said destruction of the unsafe back portion of the building has been completed.

In other PACE matters, a midpoint award of $12,500 was approved for 1003 East Street to Brian Marshall on a dilapidated structures grant and a $7,272 final PACE award for 809 East Second Street to Peggy Vlerebome.

Child care, housing to be OurSIRDA priorities for READI 2.0

BY BOB DEMAREE

With about five weeks to go until the application deadline for the next round of Regional Economic Acceleration and Development Initiative (READI) funding, the five-county Our Southern Indiana Regional Development Authority met Friday and heard that expectations are likely for Indiana Economic Development Corporation (IEDC) funding to be up to $75 million per region.

Cory Cochran, executive director of River Hills Economic Development District Regional Planning Commission, hired by the region to oversee the READI process, said the application has several questions "all of which are how can we help the state move the needle on some of their key performance indicators" which he said includes educational attainment, childcare, housing, return on investment and matching dollars.

Cochran said the state's top priorities are childcare and housing. "Those are the projects that we think we can help move the needle for the state," he said, adding key performance indicators are emphasized but that "childcare and housing is where our region can make improvement for investing significant dollars," even though all types of projects are needed as part of OurSIRDA's plan.

Cochran said his staff is currently going through all of the projects that have been submitted throughout the region. "We have a good first draft" of the application which will be reviewed by the OurSIRDA directors and the region's task force.

As part of the process, Cochran said IEDC representatives will be meeting in-person with OurSIRDA representatives for a day during the first week of February. The first half of the day will be to review what was accomplished by the region in the first round of READI when OurSIRDA was awarded $50 million in December of 2021. The second half will be devoted to READI 2.0 for "what we plan and what we envision, and then ideally they will provide feedback to us."

"We hope to have a real good draft of our application (for READI 2.0) by that date for them to review and to provide feedback," Cochran said "That gives us about two weeks to make any tweaks or significant changes" before the Feb. 16 application deadline.

IEDC has set the month of April for when region funding will be announced, although an exact date has not been established. There is $500 million available in READI 2.0 with $75 million the maximum amount that can be received by a region.

If OurSIRDA receives funding then there will be a Request-for-Projects for project applicants throughout the region that will require more detail than the Call-for-Projects that were submitted last fall. After that, Cochran said the hope is by August or September, there will be announcements on what projects in the region will receive funding.

Although OurSIRDA received the maximum $50 million funding that was available for regions in the first round of READI, Chair Dana Huber said it cannot expect what funding might be received in READI 2.0.

"We have our work cut out for us. We can never assume anything," she said.

In other business:

- With it being OurSIRDA's first meeting of the year, officers were elected for the year with Huber of Clark County reelected as chair, Kellems of Jefferson County elected vice chair and Chris Fordyce of Washington County elected secretary-treasurer. Others on the board of directors are Ken Rush, representing Floyd County, and Steve Meyer, representing Scott County. Fordyce is a recent appointee to the board of directors, replacing John Jones who resigned. Fordyce was elected in November by the commissioners and mayors in the region, and participated in his first meeting in December.
- With a total of $700,000 allocated by the region for a proposed Southern Indiana Youth Complex in Scott County, those funds were reallocated after it was realized in the design services phase that the total cost of that project was going to be much higher than originally anticipated and the decision was made not to move forward with that project.

After fees were paid for a fiscal impact and design services for the youth complex, the remaining amount was $635,500. The decision was made to keep as much of the reallocated funding in Scott County as possible with $127,000 to Scott County school districts 1 and 2 for early childhood learning and pre-kindergarten equipment, $433,500 to the Scott County YMCA for engineering assessments and equipment repair, and $75,000 to Washington County for comprehensive planning.

Public Arts Commission gives OK to public art guidelines

BY BOB DEMAREE

A resolution recommending approval of public art guidelines for the City of Madison was adopted by the Public Arts Commission at its meeting on Thursday, and will now head to City Council for consideration on Tuesday, Feb. 6.

The guidelines were developed by Sara Peterson, a management and governance consultant who lives in Bloomington, Indiana, who was hired by the Public Arts Commission to prepare that document.

At Thursday's meeting, final revisions and review were made to the document.

The guidelines will include an opening letter by Commission Chair Kim Nyberg, who said the letter will serve as an introduction about Madison that tells about "our historic public art and our new opportunities for new public art" that provides for "building onto what we've had here for many years and move forward."

Nyberg described the guidelines as a "beautiful document," and told Peterson "you've done a beautiful job with this, and we really appreciate your commitment, and your due diligence, and helping us to get the best we can" from the guidelines designed specifically for the city of Madison.

Peterson will attend the Madison City Council meeting on Feb. 6, when the resolution is scheduled to be considered for adoption.

The public arts guidelines are currently available for review through a link on the Public Arts Commission page on the City of Madison's website or by following the link: https://www.madison-in.gov/egov/documents/1702411243_26865.pdf .

Mobile sensory vehicle now available for county events

BY BOB DEMAREE

Jefferson County now has a mobile sensory vehicle for use at events for persons with PTSD (Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder), anxiety or autism or anyone who gets overwhelmed by the activities or the noise during the activity, providing a space for them to calm themselves.

Mike Sims, chair of the non-profit Kindness Jefferson County, talked about the mobile sensory vehicle at Thursday's meeting of the County Health and Human Relations Commission.

He said the mobile sensory device will be free to those who need to use it during festivals and events when it is available. "It's the only one that we know of in Indiana," said Sims, adding the vehicle was purchased through $85,000 in grants. "We're pretty fortunate for us to have it."

The first event in which the vehicle will be available on site is the Lanier Mansion's Eggstravaganza on Saturday, March 30, 10 a.m. "That will be a sensory inclusive event," said Sims.

Persons who volunteer to assist with the mobile sensory vehicle must receive training on how it operates. Sims said those interested in volunteering can email him at kindnessjeffersoncounty@gmail.com, and an application will be sent to them to be filled out and returned for consideration of approval by the Kindness Jefferson County board of directors.

- County Health Administrator Lindsey Wyne reported that as part of the health department's participation in Indiana's Health First there will be a partnership with WIC (Women, Infants, Children) which has its office in the Hanover Community Building. Wyne said the focus will be on nutritional and wellness programs.
- Commission chair Jane Stormer presented several alternatives to assist those in Jefferson County who have language barriers and the need for some sort of translation interpreters to be able to communicate, citing in particular emergency situations in which there could be persons unable to express that they need help or how and what they need help. "I think it should be a priority because there are so many state and federal laws that surround this. I want everybody to be equitably served in all aspects in our county, whether they're calling 911 or a fire" or other instances.

Traditional veterinary schools are four-year programs with the summers off, but Lambert said Hanover College will offer an accelerated program with students continuing classes through the summer. "We're seeing a trend in professional education of doing the traditional academic calendar so that would accelerate the educational process," he said.

Additionally, the Hanover College program will take a hybrid approach to veterinary education in which traditional classroom instruction will be done online. Lambert said the hands-on laboratory experience will take place at facilities to be constructed at Hanover College. The other component of the veterinary education will include field experiences, internships and practicums that are done in veterinary hospitals, veterinary clinics and large agricultural centers.

Hanover College has begun the process for the veterinary school accreditation by retaining Animal Policy Group, leading consultants for DVM new program accreditation. Animal Policy Group most recently assisted in the accreditation effort for the University of Arizona College of Veterinary Medicine, launched in 2020, the newest school of veterinary medicine in the United States.

University of Arizona College of Veterinary Medicine is also known for its innovative curriculum designed to be completed in three years. The program hosted its inaugural Commencement ceremony on Aug. 24, 2023, awarding Doctor of Veterinary Medicine degrees to 106 graduates.

A requirement for beginning the accreditation is the hiring of founding dean, a role that is being fulfilled by Tran who was most recently at the University of Arizona College of Veterinary Medicine, where she has been clinical relations lead veterinarian and associate professor of practice. With Tran's experience there, Lambert said she is "very familiar with being part of a start-up program."

Lambert said Tran grew up in Chicago, so she "knows this region" and "she has ties to Indiana," having served as director of veterinary technology and clinical assistant professor at Purdue University from 2013-2016.

Trans earned a Doctor of Veterinary Medicine degree and Bachelor of Science in Veterinary Sciences at the University of Illinois Urbana-Champaign. She received a bachelor's degree in biological sciences at the University of California-Davis.

In 2022, Tran received the Arizona Veterinary Medical Association Distinguished Service Award. She was presented with the University of Illinois College of Veterinary Medicine's Dr. Erwin Small Distinguished Alumni Award in 2021 and, that same year, was recognized as one of the Southern California Veterinary Medical Association's "21 to Watch in 2021."

"We're excited to have her leading our efforts. She brings a great deal of experience in the Doctor of Veterinary program and also in the veterinary nursing," coming to the attention of Hanover College by being the consultant Ivy Tech Madison hired for its veterinary nursing curriculum. Tran's appointment to Hanover College begins Feb. 5.

The new veterinary school will be located off State Road 56-62 east of Scenic Drive at the Hanover College entrance. Lambert said the reason for putting the school there is to accommodate parking and the size and scope of the school without disrupting activities on the main campus. Also, because it's a shared facility with Ivy Tech Madison, it will provide easier access for those students who will taking classes in Madison at its Clifty Drive campus for the core curriculum but will be going to Hanover College for the veterinary specific course work.

Lambert said the design of the buildings in the veterinary school will be different than the Georgian architecture that's prevalent on the Hanover College main campus where there will continue to be a commitment to that style.

With the new veterinary school being located a small distance from the main campus, "we wanted more of an agricultural feel, and to also blend into the surrounding landscape of Jefferson County which is a rural community." An existing house on the property will be incorporated into the design.

Ivy Tech Madison's nursing programming is working towards accreditation in 2025 with Hanover College's timeline seeking accreditation for 2026.

Kevin Kellems, who represents Jefferson County on the RDA, referred to the veterinary school as "transformational and visionary" and complimented Lambert along all other Hanover College and Ivy Tech Community College Madison administrators who have been involved in developing plans for the veterinary school.

Kellems said the veterinary school achieves much of what Our Southern Indiana Regional Development Authority wants to achieve through its work. "It checks off a lot boxes," he said, citing education as the most obvious. "It's a genuinely regional project. A lot of people throw that phrase around" but this one provides for quality of place with a emphasis on rural development. Kellems said the veterinary school will be much "bigger and broader" than personal pets, "we're talking about large animal science, biotech and it pays homage to our rural heritage."

He said the veterinary school is an example of "precisely what can be achieved through regional collaboration, producing something that is regionally, statewide and nationally significant."

Switzerland County junior Avy Burkholder, shown during soccer season, won the IHSGW Wrestling Semistate Championship on Saturday at Mooresville.

Burkholder wins IHSGW Semistate at 110 pounds

BY THE COURIER STAFF

Switzerland County junior Avy Burkholder won all four of her matches in convincing fashion to claim the championship at 110 pounds in the IHSGW semistate at Mooresville on Saturday.

Burkholder won her first two matches by pin/fall, getting Franklin's Clarissa Clipp in 1:48 and Allison Santos of Ben Davis in 2:34. In the semifinals, she dispatched Mooresville's Khloe Nedelsky by a 4-0 score, then held off Seymour's AnnMarie Shuler 8-6 in the finals.

Burkholder now advances to the state championship in Kokomo this weekend where she will be joined by teammate Klaire Redwine and Madison's Maylie Skinner, each of whom placed second in their respective weight classes.

Redwine finished second at 135 pounds. After receiving a bye and posting a win by pin/fall and another by a technical fall, Redwine was pinned in 1:27 by Jeffersonville's Sian Rogers in the championship.

Skinner, at 155 pounds, picked up two pins and a decision on her way to the title match where she was pinned in 4:31 by Monrovia's Josie Hause.

Several other local wrestlers competed in the semistate but did not place.

Switzerland's Serenity Sims was beaten in the quarterfinals at 125 pounds and teammate Maleah Wolf lost her first match at 145 pounds. Madison's Maya Bullock lost in the quarterfinals at 100 pounds, Angelina Yantz lost in the quarters at 105 pounds and Brooklyn Neece lost in the quarterfinals at 190 pounds.

Mooresville won the semistate championship with 101 points. Switzerland placed eighth out of 30 scoring teams with 47.5 points and Madison was 16th with 32 points.

The IHSGW State Finals will be held in Kokomo starting on Friday.

Southwestern senior Ashley Fulton (right) gets hugs from teammates after scoring her 1,000th-career point in the Rebels' loss at Austin on Thursday.

Fulton joins 1,000-point club in Southwestern loss

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

AUSTIN — Ashley Fulton knew that getting points against Austin's stingy defense would be a chore, but the Southwestern senior just stuck to her game plan confident that points would come in the end.

Fulton's basket with just under 20 seconds to play proved to be her only basket of the game but it pushed her over the 1,000-point mark for her Southwestern career in the Rebels' 56-46 loss at Austin on Thursday.

Fulton becomes just the 12th player in school history to reach the mark and the significance wasn't lost on her.

"It really just means a lot. I'm proud that I got it but knowing that my teammates were there supporting me and everyone gave me a hug after, that's really what it's all about," Fulton said. "I couldn't do it without my team, my coaches and all the little kids who came to support me and everyone else who was involved."

Fulton has had her share of battles with Austin over the years and knows how hard it can be to score against the Eagles and Thursday was no different. Right up until the end of the game all Fulton could do was draw fouls and go to the line, where she hit seven of her eight attempts.

With time winding down, the game out of reach and determined to reach the mark, Fulton admitted that she started to press a little. The basket that put her over the top came after she had attacked the basket and missed a tough shot in the paint. However, teammate Olivia Simpson grab the rebound and made a quick pass back to Fulton that led to a tough off-balance jumper from 8 feet that hit nothing but net.

"The whole time going into it, I told myself just don't really force it. Just play my game," Fulton said. "But then towards the end, I started sweating a little bit. I was like, 'I want to get this. I really want to get it' so the nerves didn't kick in towards the end because it was less than 30 seconds left when I got the shot. But at the end, I was like, 'Hey, get the ball and see what happens.' "

After the next dead ball, Austin stopped play and acknowledged Fulton's milestone. Hugs with coaches and teammates followed.

Southwestern coach Brian Crank, who has coached Fulton since her sophomore year, got choked up talking about what it means to see his senior leader reach the mark.

"She's a good kid. Not the most talented, but she just works. She's one of the reasons that we're taking the step that we're making in the last three years," Crank said. "It's always good when your leader is your hardest worker and she's always about the team. You know, she actually would have took zero points if we had gotten the win, that's the kind of person she is."

As for the game itself, Southwestern led only briefly in the first quarter, but the Rebels stayed close throughout. The Eagles began to pull away in the fourth quarter, getting the lead to 18 (50-32) before the Rebels closed the game on a 14-6 run for the final margin.

While it ended up as a loss — Southwestern's third-straight — it came on the heels of a one-point loss to Brownstown Central the week before and a good showing against Class 2A's top-ranked team, North Knox. Even in defeat, the Rebels like the direction they are headed.

"(Austin) was a sectional opponent and they were 12-4 coming in So we knew we had our work cut out for us. But losing by only 10 to a sectional opponent who has that record that really shows a lot about our team," Fulton said. "Two years ago, we would have came out here and this wouldn't have been a game but today, just having each other's backs, makes such a big difference."

Chloey Leach led Southwestern with 12 points while Fulton had nine and Rorie Scroggins scored eight.

Brynn Owens scored a game-high 23 points for Austin (13-4).

Southwestern, now 10-10 on the season, hosts Switzerland County in a key Ohio River Valley Conference matchup on Thursday.

Late rally falls short for Madison 51-45 to Charlestown

BY DAVID CAMPBELL

Madison rallied from 14 points down to pull within three late but couldn't get over the hump in a 51-45 boys basketball loss to Charlestown on Saturday in Madison.

The Cubs missed their first 17 shots from the 3-point arc before finally finding their range over the last 12 minutes of the game and hitting six treys to cut into Charlestown's double-digit lead.

Landon True's 3-pointer with 42 seconds left cut the margin to 48-45. Charlestown needed to make free throws to fend off the comeback and the Pirates did just that, hitting three freebies over the final 31 seconds to deny the Cubs' comeback.

"I thought the way we didn't give up the entire game, and the way the players handled themselves was really impressive," Madison coach Adam Stotts said. "Landon True didn't play his best game, but what he did on the floor was impressive. I thought everybody kind of brought value tonight. We fought all night against a good team that returned everybody from last year."

Madison (3-7) struggled to find any offense through the first three quarters. The Cubs not only missed all of their 14 3-pointers in the first half, but shot only 22% over that span while turning the ball over 10 times.

Charlestown (6-6) wasn't much better and the Pirates only led 22-13 at halftime before opening the third quarter strong to take a 28-14 lead with 5:08 left in the frame.

Damon Harden finally broke the 3-point drought with a trey from the corner and that basket ignited the Cubs. Madison hit three of its next four attempts from long range and began slicing into the lead, closing the third down 35-28 and pulling to within four (41-37) early in the fourth quarter.

But while Charlestown bent, it never broke and Madison was unable to get ahead. Twice the Cubs closed to within three points — the last on True's 3-pointer — but they could never get any closer.

"My main point for the game was to be loose, fun. Shoot the shots we can shoot. It just boils down to that's good defense," Stotts said. "Damon came in and gave us a nice lift and hit some big ones. In the first half, I think we were just trying to wiggle it in a little bit. But it was like that for both teams. It was good defense both ways."

Madison ended up shooting only 30% for the game but turned the ball over only three times in the second half. Quincy Reynolds scored 11 points and had five rebounds for the Cubs while Harden had nine points off the bench.

Demetrius Phelps scored 22 points and Tre Martin and Grason Connell scored eight points each to lead Charlestown.

On Friday, Madison dropped a 72-31 loss at Class 3A No. 9 Scottsburg (10-3). Former Madison Cub Jack Miller scored 26 points on 11-for-15 shooting to lead Scottsburg while Wyatt Zellers had 22 points and Dare Bowles had 11.

No Cub reached double figures in the game with True's eight points leading the way. Reynolds added six points.

Madison plays two home games this weekend, hosting Lawrenceburg (9-5) on Friday and undefeated Class 4A No. 12 Richmond (14-0) on Saturday.

Dropped 4th-down pass costly as Colts squander playoff chance 23-19

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — Indianapolis Colts quarterback Gardner Minshew tried to console Tyler Goodson after the running back dropped a fourth-down pass with 1:06 seconds left in a win-or-go home game against Houston on Saturday night.

Heck, Minshew even said he should have made a better throw.

Regardless of who was to blame, Goodson, Minshew and the Colts had no choice but to accept the cold, hard reality — their season is over because on a night they converted only one of third-down chance, they also blew their only fourth-down attempt of the game.

"Obviously, we called timeout there, it was on fourth-and-1, we saw the front we were in and we liked the look of that play," coach Shane Steichen said following the 23-19, playoff-eliminating loss to the Texans. "Obviously, if it doesn't work, you're going to second guess it."

The play wasn't the problem.

Goodson, who was activated off the practice squad earlier this season, was wide open. And had they connected, Goodson had blockers and a possible lane to the end zone for a go-ahead touchdown.

Instead, Goodson appeared to stumble or perhaps it was a touch too hard. Either way, the ball bounced off Goodson's chest and hit the ground, sealing the Colts' fate in what was an entertaining, high-stakes game.

"That (drop) helped us punch our ticket," defensive end Will Anderson Jr. said after the Texans (10-7) secured their first playoff berth since 2019. "We have grit, we train relentlessly, and everyone knew what it was going to take. That is what you dream about even as a little kid. To see everyone's dream come true in these types of games, man, I'm so hyped."

For Goodson and the Colts, though, it was a nightmare ending.

On a night they started slow and fought back into position, just like they had after going 3-5 and finding themselves in the AFC South basement in late October, the NFL's second-best team in one-possession games was on the precipice of capping its season with yet another remarkable chapter.

And in the blink of an eye it all went awry.

"I worked too hard to drop a ball like that, but I have to accept it," a frustrated and emotional Goodson said despite it being a tough catch., "It still touched my hands. But next year, I won't ever be in that position, ever again."

The bigger question for Steichen was why Goodson was even in the game?

Indy (9-8) relied almost exclusively on Jonathan Taylor, who carried 30 times for a season-best 188 yards and had a 49-yard TD run before hurting his foot and ankle in the second half. His return was initially listed as questionable then was downgraded to doubtful.

So with Taylor out, Zack Moss filled in. But after running six times for 30 yards, Taylor suddenly and surprisingly returned for Indy's final series.

Despite appearing to struggle at times with planting for cuts, the 2021 NFL rushing champ still carried the ball on seven straight plays leading up to the fourth-down call, taking the Colts down the field and inside Houston 20-yard line with a little more than one minute to play.

That's when Goodson went into the game, and it seemed like a no-brainer to Indy. Steichen said the play was designed for Goodson, and Minshew explained he and Goodson practiced it many times.

But when the play didn't work, Goodson's teammates rallied to his defense.

"We all have plays that we want back. Just because it's the last one makes it that much more significant," Minshew said. "I told him (Goodson) I'd throw that ball every time. I trust him."

And all Goodson could ask for was do-over — next season.

"I happened to fail today, but I'm standing tall," he said. "It's over. A lot guys came up to me and said 'Keep your head up, never lose your confidence, just keep being me, keep being myself' and that's what I'm going to do."

With Browns resting starters for playoffs, Bengals win 31-14 to finish above .500

BY MITCH STACY
ASSOCIATED PRESS

CINCINNATI — With a mostly meaningless loss to the Bengals in the books, the Browns could turn their attention to preparing for their first playoff game in three years.

Cleveland coach Kevin Stefanski rested most of his starters Sunday in a 31-14 loss to Cincinnati. The Browns will play at AFC South champion Houston in the wild-card round next weekend.

Locked in as the No. 5 seed in the AFC, Cleveland (11-6) was content to play out the regular season with backups before its second postseason appearance in the last 21 seasons.

"This is what you work for," Browns defensive end Ogbo Okoronkwo said. "These are the days you dream about. Feels good to put ourselves in position to win the big one."

Quarterback Joe Flacco, star defensive end Myles Garrett, receiver Amari Cooper and cornerback Denzel Ward were among the Browns' starters who sat out Sunday.

"When you look at these games, it's about what's best for your football team," Stefanski said. "I knew what this game was, a great opportunity for young guys to get some reps."

The Bengals were more motivated.

Jake Browning threw three touchdown passes, and Joe Mixon rushed for a season-high 111 yards and a score, reaching a couple milestones along the way.

The Bengals led 24-0 at halftime. Browns quarterback Jeff Driskel — signed Dec. 29 from Arizona's practice squad — didn't fare well against Cincinnati's defensive regulars until the fourth quarter, when he threw two touchdown passes to David Bell.

The Bengals had a difficult season. Franchise quarterback Joe Burrow wasn't at full strength to start the season and suffered a season-ending wrist injury in the 10th game. Other key players missed chunks of time.

"I thought our guys handled it professionally and finished it the right way," Cincinnati coach Zac Taylor said.

Cincinnati (9-8) finished above .500 for the third straight season, and the AFC North became the first division since the 1970 merger to have all its teams finish above .500. The Bengals avoided going winless against divisional foes.

"Going 1-5 (in the division) is in no way, shape or form acceptable to us," Taylor said.

Mixon's 1-yard rushing TD in the first quarter was his ninth of the season and 49th of his career, moving him to No. 2 on the Bengals' all-time list behind Pete Johnson's 64. Mixon also finished with 1,034 yards rushing, his fourth time in seven seasons topping the 1,000-yard mark.

Browning finished 4-3 as the Bengals' starter, passing for 156 yards against Cleveland before being relieved by AJ McCarron after three quarters. Andrei Iosivas caught two touchdown passes.

Driskel had 166 yards passing — 111 in the fourth quarter — and two interceptions.

Stefanski said he hadn't determined who would back up Flacco against the Texans.

INJURIES

Browns DT Shelby Harris suffered a shin injury in the second quarter and didn't return. Stefanski said Harris "will be OK." ... LB Mohamoud Diabate left with a thumb injury in the second half. ... RB Pierre Strong Jr. went out with a back injury. ... WR Cedric Tillman was evaluated for a head injury.

YOU DON'T SAY

This is the first time since 1988 that both the Browns and Bengals finished above .500 in the same season. The Bengals went to Super Bowl that season, and Browns lost in wild-card round.

ALMOST

Bengals defensive end Trey Hendrickson was credited with a half-sack on Driskel, which gave him 17 — second most in the league and two behind T.J. Watt of the Steelers.

UP NEXT

The Browns have hopes of making a playoff run behind the red-hot Flacco, a former Super Bowl MVP who salvaged their season after the team brought him in off the street in November.

Cleveland suffered a series of major injuries this season, including to quarterback Deshaun Watson and star running back Nick Chubb, but the Browns have the league's top-ranked defense, and Flacco made their offense dangerous with his deep passing ability.

Lawrence stopped short of goal line as Jags eliminated 28-20 by Titans

BY TERESA M. WALKER
AP PRO FOOTBALL WRITER

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Trevor Lawrence called his own number on fourth-and-goal at the 1, stretching the ball out with the right arm that had him questionable for a game the Jacksonville Jaguars had to win to reach the playoffs for a second straight season.

Tennessee stopped him short with 7:13 left. With one final chance, Lawrence couldn't pick up a first down before turning the ball over on downs again with 1:47 left as the Tennessee Titans eliminated the Jaguars 28-20 Sunday in their regular-season finale.

Lawrence defended his decision to change to a play he's scored on previously near the goal line.

"They trust me with those things, and it didn't work," Lawrence said. "I've got to take accountability for that and, at the end of the day, that's on me if I decide to do it and don't get in. It's one of those plays where, if you do it, you better score and I didn't. It's unfortunate."

The Jaguars (9-8) missed a chance at their first back-to-back AFC South titles since 1998 and 1999. Their loss makes Houston the division champs, costing the Jaguars their only way into the postseason after Pittsburgh also won Saturday.

Jacksonville controlled its fate starting 8-3 only to finish losing five of six. Lawrence, who returned after missing last week with a sprained shoulder, was intercepted twice. The Jaguars also turned the ball over on downs three times — twice when it mattered most.

Lawrence tried to rally the Jaguars from a 15-point deficit with a 14-yard TD pass to Evan Engram at the start of the fourth quarter.

Jaguars coach Doug Pederson passed up a field goal on that key fourth-and-goal, wanting a touchdown and 2-point conversion to tie it up. He called it "unfortunate" being a couple of inches away.

"Obviously, he had success in the past on it, just came up inches short," Pederson said of Lawrence switching the fourth down play. "But you can't fault him for trying to make a play."

The Titans, with the NFL's stingiest defense inside their 20, stopped Lawrence about a foot short as he tried to reach the ball across the goal line.

"Told them at halftime, 'Guys, you're the best red zone defense in the league, and we're going to need a stop to win the game,' " Titans coach Mike Vrabel said. "And that's what they did."

Once the Jaguars got the ball back with 2:18 remaining and no timeouts, Lawrence scrambled on first down. His deep pass went off Calvin Ridley's fingertips, then Lawrence threw incomplete on the next two downs with the last one nowhere close to Engram.

The Jaguars tight end finished with 10 catches for 79 yards, giving him 114 receptions this season for the second most by a tight end in NFL history.

"I'm lost for words, honestly," Engram said.

Tennessee's win makes the Texans the AFC South champs and the No. 4 seed, who will host No. 5 seed Cleveland in the wild-card round. Pittsburgh and Buffalo, who visits Miami in the final game of the regular season on Sunday night, both clinched playoff berths with Jacksonville eliminated.

Pittsburgh now needs Miami to beat Buffalo to clinch the No. 6 seed, though the Steelers would be the seventh seed with a Bills' win. Some Steelers fans waved Terrible Towels at Nissan Stadium, cheering as the Titans helped their team reach the playoffs.

Jaguars linebacker Josh Allen called this disappointing in a series where Jacksonville had won three straight.

"Nobody came here and expected us to lose, obviously," Allen said.

Derrick Henry ran for a season-high 153 yards and a touchdown even with the Jaguars putting eight and nine defenders close to the line. That helped the Titans (6-11) finish on a winning note after they had been eliminated from playoff contention earlier than at any prior point in Vrabel's six-season tenure.

This win snapped a three-game skid and also gave them a measure of revenge after the Jaguars kept the Titans from a third straight AFC South title in last season's finale.

Henry, fresh off being voted to his fourth Pro Bowl, got a huge ovation when introduced last. He turned 30 on Thursday, and this is his last game under contract. The two-time NFL rushing champ put on a show. Henry ran for an 18-yard touchdown to put Tennessee up 7-3 early.

Henry broke off a 69-yard run on the first drive of the third, setting up Tannehill's 6-yard TD pass to DeAndre Hopkins for a 28-13 lead. Tannehill also started his last game under contract with rookie Will Levis sidelined by an injured right foot.

"This is a great way to go out, especially against a division opponent, an opponent that I grew down the street watching and looking at and following as a kid growing up," Henry said. "So it's all full circle, which is great to be able to finish with the win and finish with class."

South Dakota State repeats as FCS champ with 29th consecutive win

BY STEPHEN HAWKINS
ASSOCIATED PRESS

FRISCO, Texas — Mark Gronowski ran for a touchdown and threw for another after halftime as South Dakota State won its second straight Football Championship Subdivision title, beating Montana 23-3 on Sunday.

The Jackrabbits (15-0) extended their overall winning streak to 29 games in a row, including their win over North Dakota State in last year's FCS game for their first national title.

South Dakota State had an impressive game-opening drive, but led only 7-3 at halftime. Gronowski, the quarterback starting his third FCS title game, then bulled into the end zone for a 10-yard score midway through the third quarter, and on the next possession threw a 23-yard TD to Jadon Janke.

Gronowski finished 13-of-21 passing for 175 yards and ran eight times for 53 yards.

Montana's 27 playoff appearances are the most in the second tier of Division I football. National champions in 1995 and 2001, the Grizzlies (13-2) have now finished as the runner-up six times, four under coach Bobby Hauck.

This was the Grizzlies' first title game since 2009, when they were runner-ups for the third time in Hauck's first seven seasons. Hauck then left for FBS team UNLV and also was on staff at San Diego State before returning to Montana in 2018.

Less than two weeks after South Dakota State was crowned champions last year, John Stiegelmeier retired after 26 seasons as head coach. He was succeeded by defensive coordinator Jimmy Rogers, a former Jackrabbits linebacker who was captain of their first playoff team in 2009 — when they lost to Montana after blowing a 27-point lead.

Both teams had only one possession in the first quarter Sunday. Montana's opening drive spilled into the first play of the second quarter, when on its 15th play, running back Eli Gillman was stuffed by Jackrabbits linebacker Adam Boch for no gain on fourth-and-goal from the 1.

South Dakota State had opened the game with a 75-play, 11-play drive. Gronowski completed his first five passes for 55 yards and converted a third-and-4 with a 9-yard keeper right before Isaiah Davis' 6-yard TD run.

That put the Jackrabbits ahead to stay, though they had a couple of costly mistakes before halftime.

A few plays after Boch's stop, one of his 11 tackles, Gronowski had a pass intercepted by Corbin Walker that Montana turned into a field goal for its only points. South Dakota State also had a turnover when punting, as the ball ricocheted off one of its players and recovered by the Griz, though they punted it back.

SOUTH DAKOTA STATE

In their third title game appearance in four seasons, the Jackrabbits became the first team since North Dakota State (2017-19) to repeat as champions. It was another stellar defensive performance in this playoff run for South Dakota State, which had two lopsided shutout victories (41-0 and 59-0) in its previous three games.

THE TAKEAWAY

Montana: Playmaking quarterback Clifton McDowell, who had been 11-0 as the Griz starter, was under increased pressure, especially after halftime. He completed 22 of 39 passes for 165 yards, but was sacked four times. After he was stripped of the ball when being sacked late in the third quarter, 295-yard defensive tackle Ryan Van Marel came up with the ball.

South Dakota State: In their third title game appearance in four seasons, the Jackrabbits became the first team since North Dakota State (2017-19) to repeat as champions. It was another stellar defensive performance in this playoff run for South Dakota State, which had two lopsided shutout victories (41-0 and 59-0) in its previous three games.

Michigan, Washington have 2 players on AP's all-bowl team

BY STEVE MEGARGEE
ASSOCIATED PRESS

Washington quarterback Michael Penix Jr.'s wizardry in the Sugar Bowl got the Huskies into Monday's College Football Playoff championship game.

It also earned him a spot on the Associated Press' all-bowl team.

There were enough memorable individual performances in this postseason to cause us to expand our team a little. The AP made room for three running backs who each rushed for at least 200 yards in their respective bowl games and added an all-purpose spot both on offense and special teams.

Here's a look at the team now that all the postseason games other than the championship game have been played.

OFFENSE

Quarterback

• Michael Penix Jr., Washington (Sugar): The Heisman Trophy runner-up went 29 of 38 for 430 yards with a pair of touchdowns as the second-ranked Huskies (No. 2 College Football Playoff) won 37-31 over No. 3 Texas (No. 3 CFP). He also had three carries for 31 yards.

Running back

• Freddie Brock, Georgia State (Famous Idaho Potato): After 1,350-yard rusher Marcus Carroll entered the transfer portal, Brock made his first start at Georgia State in the bowl game and rushed for a school-record 276 yards on 24 carries to lead the Panthers past Utah State 45-22. Brock had just six carries for 31 yards during the regular season.

• Emmanuel Michel, Air Force (Armed Forces): Michel had 35 carries for a career-high 203 yards and a pair of touchdowns in a 31-21 victory over No. 24 James Madison, which entered bowl season ranked first among all Football Bowl Subdivision teams in run defense.

• Darius Taylor, Minnesota (Quick Lane): After missing five games with a leg injury, Taylor returned for the bowl game and rushed for 208 yards and a touchdown on 35 carries as Minnesota defeated Bowling Green 30-24. He also had two catches for 11 yards. Taylor's running prowess helped the Gophers win a game in which they had just 26 yards passing.

Wide receiver

• Lawrence Arnold and Luke Grimm, Kansas (Guaranteed Rate): This duo is one of two receiving tandems to make our all-bowl team. Arnold and Grimm each scored three touchdowns in Kansas' 49-36 triumph over UNLV. Grimm had four receptions for 160 yards. Arnold caught six passes for 132 yards.

• Tez Johnson, Oregon (Fiesta): Johnson caught 11 passes for 172 yards and a touchdown as No. 8 Oregon (No. 8 CFP) trounced No. 18 Liberty (No. 23 CFP) 45-6.

• Rashod Owens and Brennan Presley, Oklahoma State (Texas): Owens caught 10 passes for 164 yards and two touchdowns as No. 22 Oklahoma State (No. 20 CFP) defeated Texas A&M 31-23. Presley didn't score but caught 16 passes — tying a school record — for 152 yards.

Tight end

• Caden Prieskorn, Mississippi (Peach): Prieskorn had 10 catches for a career-high 136 yards and scored two touchdowns as No. 11 Ole Miss (No. 11 CFP) beat No. 10 Penn State (No. 10 CFP) 38-25.

• Line

• Cooper Beebe, Kansas State (Pop Tarts): This AP All-America first-team guard opted to play for Kansas State (No. 25 CFP) in its 28-19 victory over No. 19 North Carolina State (No. 18) rather than getting a head start on draft preparation. Beebe paved the way for Kansas State to gain 435 total yards, including 257 rushing.

• Will Campbell, LSU (Reliaquest): Campbell had the flu in the days leading up to this game, yet he played every snap and didn't allow a sack while helping No. 13 LSU (No. 13 CFP) gain 492 yards in a 35-31 win over Wisconsin.

• Ajani Cornelius, Oregon (Fiesta): Cornelius didn't allow a single pressure in 37 pass-blocking opportunities during the bowl game. Oregon didn't allow a single sack in the Fiesta Bowl and gave up only five all season, the fewest of any FBS team.

• Ashton Craig, Notre Dame (Sun) : In just his third career start, this center helped No. 15 Notre Dame (No. 16 CFP) gain 468 total yards in a 40-8 victory over No. 21 Oregon State (No. 19) despite playing without its usual starting quarterback, leading rusher or starting tackles due to opt-outs.

• Sedrick Van Pran, Georgia (Orange): While making his 44th consecutive start at center, Van Pran helped No. 6 Georgia (No. 6 CFP) gain 673 total yards — including 372 rushing — in a 63-3 blowout of No. 4 Florida State (No. 5 CFP)

All-purpose

• Blake Corum, Michigan (Rose): Corum ran for 83 yards and a touchdown on 19 carries and also caught two passes for 35 yards and a score as No. 1 Michigan (No. 1 CFP) reached the national championship game by beating No. 5 Alabama (No. 4 CFP) 27-20 in overtime. Corum put Michigan ahead for good with a 17-yard touchdown run in overtime.

DEFENSE

Line

• Mason Graham, Michigan (Rose): Graham was named the Rose Bowl's defensive player of the game after helping Michigan contain Jalen Milroe and Alabama. He delivered one of the game's biggest plays by throwing Jase McClellan for a 5-yard loss in overtime.

Today's Puzzle Solved

Unsolicited advice does not sit well

AMY DICKINSON ASK AMY

Dear Amy: "Carol" and I are extremely good friends. I know she cares deeply about me. However, whenever she asks about my life, instead of sympathizing with my problems and my feelings, she clings to an issue I've mentioned and immediately brainstorms solutions to my problem — as though I or my family members were incompetent at solving our own problems. She asks me about how my life is, and I respond honestly. In these situations, I have not asked her for any advice.

I know she thinks she's helping, but her drive to fix everything implies that if I did things her way I wouldn't have problems or negative feelings.

I can't share about my life without getting some sort of "stop the pity party and get solving this" response. It is affecting our friendship. I find myself selecting specific, insignificant issues to tell her about. I've stopped telling her about important issues in my life until they are resolved.

Am I unreasonable to want to share my feelings with someone and just have them empathize with me? Is it wrong to have some validation, instead of streams of constant unsolicited advice?

— No Messy Feelings Allowed

Dear No Messy Feelings: I have a little sticky note on my desk with this sentence written on it: "All unsolicited advice is self-serving." I heard this once on a call-in radio show and immediately wrote it down.

Most people loathe unsolicited advice; hearing instant "solutions" can make a person feel oddly defensive about one's own problems.

So think about that quote. "Carol" is serving her own needs by leaping onto your problems. She is self-serving when she offers her instant solutions ("I'm Carol, the problem-solver!") and self-soothing, too — tamping down the anxiety that arises when she believes someone she loves is making a mistake or in trouble. Plus, leaping in like this is annoying — plain and simple! You should pull back the curtain a little and tell her honestly about how this habit affects you: "I know you're smart. I trust your instincts. But you may not realize that when I open up about problems or issues in my own life, I'm not asking for solutions. I'm just expressing how I feel about things. I'm hoping that you can listen without problem-solving. This might seem frustrating for you, but it helps me the most when I feel heard and understood."

You can also preface a narrative by saying, "I'm not looking for answers here; I just feel the need to vent about some things that are going on. Can you offer me your sympathetic ear?"

Reader provides an update on advice in 2016

AMY DICKINSON ASK AMY

Dear Readers: Periodically, I ask for "updates" regarding questions which have been published in this space. I am naturally curious about how things might have turned out for people who have received my advice. This column is devoted to a Q&A that was originally published in 2016. You can read the original question, followed by my answer. The update follows that.

Dear Amy: I live on the West Coast with a 1-month-old baby. My husband travels to the East Coast for work four nights a week. My tight-knit family lives 2,000 miles away, it's just me out here, alone with a newborn. This is an impossible situation.

I hate my husband for sleeping through the night and eating his dinners uninterrupted. I hate him even more when he lets his phone die or simply doesn't take my once-daily call because the timing is inconvenient.

My husband should be able to switch to something local in six months or a year. How do I (and our marriage) survive the next six to 12 months?

— Sleepless in Seattle

Dear Sleepless in Seattle: You should set up a time each evening to do a video call, where he and you can talk face to face and include the baby. Given the time difference, right before he goes to bed might be a good time to have this daily appointment.

Additionally, when he is home, you should have times when you leave the household while he is alone with the baby. Given the extreme distance and travel, if he comes home and acts (and is treated) like a guest in the household, he will never successfully integrate into family life.

It is vital that he spend alone time with the baby, where he holds her and physically cares for her. As you well know, it is through physical contact and caretaking that those magical moments of connection occur. He needs to step up, but, you are going to have to show him how.

Dear Amy: Seven years ago, I wrote to you as an exhausted new mom, caring for a newborn alone, while my husband traveled weekly for work. That infant is now a grade-schooler and my marriage is (thankfully) still intact. I took your advice and scheduled a daily video call for my husband, baby and me.

In addition, you recommended we plan regular time for my husband to be alone with the baby. My husband took the baby out every Saturday morning while I slept and relaxed.

I needed the silence and space more than I realized. Plus, my husband made memories with our child.

In my letter, I expected the travel to last six months. Instead it lasted nearly four years. We built a routine around your advice and survived.

Kaufman-Renn helps Purdue hold off Illinois 83-78

BY MICHAEL MAROT
ASSOCIATED PRESS

WEST LAFAYETTE — If his team was going to lose, coach Brad Underwood wanted to make sure it was someone other than Zach Edey who beat Illinois on Friday night.

So that's exactly what Trey Kaufman-Renn did.

The redshirt sophomore scored a season-high 23 points, Lance Jones added 17 and No. 1 Purdue fended off a frantic late charge from the ninth-ranked Fighting Illini for an 83-78 victory.

"Trey Kaufman-Renn, man, I just told him out there in the hall he kicked our butt," Underwood said. "I think when you play Zach, you can't play normal. You have to try to make other players beat you and I think there's some risk with that and we saw that tonight."

Kaufman-Renn made eight of 12 shots, including a rare 3-pointer to briefly blunt Illinois as it was trying to erase a 21-point deficit in the final 13 minutes. The Boilermakers (14-1, 3-1 Big Ten) got their seventh straight win, this one in the first top-10 matchup at Mackey Arena since Jan. 1, 2010.

"I thought he was fabulous," Purdue coach Matt Painter said. "He's probably the difference for us tonight."

Edey, the reigning national player of the year, spent the last eight minutes of each half in foul trouble. But as much as Illinois tried to deny him, Edey still wound up with 10 points and 15 rebounds while becoming the second Purdue player with 1,000 career boards. Only Joe Barry Carroll has more than Edey's 1,006.

Marcus Domask had 26 points and Quincy Guerrier finished with 18 points and 10 rebounds for the Fighting Illini (11-3, 2-1), who had won four in a row. They lost for the first time since top scorer Terrence Shannon Jr. was suspended after being charged with rape in Douglass County, Kansas.

The Illini never led in this one and dropped to 0-9 against No. 1 teams on the road.

But after falling behind 20-4, fighting back within three and then trailing by 21 with about 13 minutes left, Illinois made it interesting.

The Illini took advantage of a flagrant foul against Jones following a replay review to cut it to 81-75. They got within 81-78 when Coleman Hawkins made a 3 with 12.1 seconds to go, but Braden Smith answered with two free throws to seal it.

BIG PICTURE

Illinois: Mackey Arena has been a house of horrors for the Illini. That was still the case — even after they came in having topped 90 points in three straight games for the first time since December 1993. Illinois is 3-16 on the road when Purdue is ranked and 1-5 when both teams are in the top 10.

Purdue: Painter's team entered ranked No. 1 for good reason — the Boilermakers had three wins against top-10 foes. Adding a fourth Friday night matched the 2009-11 teams for the best 50-game stretch (43-7) in school history.

POLL IMPLICATIONS

Illinois: Underwood's team will slide. How far will be determined by what happens around the country this weekend.

Purdue: The Boilermakers appear poised for a fourth consecutive week atop the rankings. They already had the longest active streak of consecutive weeks in the top five (25), and it's the second-longest streak by a Big Ten team in 45 years.

Bradshaw's 3-pointer propels No. 6 Kentucky 87-85 over Florida

BY MARK LONG
ASSOCIATED PRESS

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — Aaron Bradshaw may have earned himself the green light moving forward.

The 7-foot-1 freshman hit a 3-pointer from the top of the key with 1:27 to play — just his third of the season — and No. 6 Kentucky rallied to beat Florida 87-85 on Saturday in the first Southeastern Conference opener between the rivals in 26 years.

Bradshaw finished with 10 points and seven rebounds for the Wildcats (11-2), who won their fifth in a row and ninth in 10 games.

This one went Florida's way for most of the afternoon, right up until coach John Calipari called a shot for his big man coming out of a timeout. Bradshaw set a ball screen and then got the ball back for a straight-on trey that was nothing but net.

It silenced many of the 10,000-plus on hand in the O'Connell Center.

"It was fun. I like that," Bradshaw said. "That's a really good team. I find it real, real gratifying. It was real fun. I'm not going to lie. It was real fun playing in front of them and against them."

Bradshaw entered the game having made two of three from behind the arc, so the Gators knew he could shoot. But he surely wasn't atop the watch list.

"If you would have told me they were going to need a 3 from their freshman big to dagger you guys, you'd probably live with that," Florida coach Todd Golden said. "He beat us with that shot. We didn't really beat ourselves with that shot."

The Gators (10-4) led by as many as 11 in the first half and were up for nearly 30 of the 40 minutes. But they went cold down the stretch, going scoreless for nearly three minutes in the waning minutes, and then fell behind on Bradshaw's shot with the game tied at 76.

Kentucky never trailed again, thanks partly to Reed Sheppard hitting six free throws in the final 19 seconds to ice it.

Antonio Reeves led the Cats with 19 points, and D.J. Wagner added 14. Sheppard also had 14. Kentucky made 12 of 13 from the foul stripe after missing the front end of consecutive one-and-ones late.

"This is where you find out where you are right now," Calipari said, praising his team for never backing down in a hostile environment. "I don't care if they're young. They're dogs. They have a will to win."

Florida's six-game winning streak came to an end. Zyon Pullin and Walter Clayton led the Gators with 23 points apiece. Riley Kugel added 15 off the bench.

But Florida got little from starters Tyrese Samuel and Will Richard. Samuel scored three points on 1-of-6 shooting, and Richard missed all eight shots and finished with two points.

Equally problematic for Golden: His team missed 10 of 11 from 3-point range after making eight — including two bank shots — in the first half.

"We missed some really good looks," Golden said. "One shot here, one turnover there is the difference. ... I thought it was a missed opportunity."

POLL IMPLICATIONS

Kentucky could move up when the next AP college basketball rankings are released Monday.

BIG PICTURE

Kentucky: Calipari has his best team in years, one that entered the game averaging 91.1 points. The Wildcats could see that number dip in league play, but maybe not by much as evidenced by the opener.

Florida: The Gators are as talented and deep as they've been in a decade and will be a tough out in SEC play. They were actually favored by 3 1/2 entering the game, a clear nod to what's going on in Gainesville.

"It's all part of the growth of where we want to get," Golden said. "But we led for 30 minutes. Shoot, that's going to sting."

Commanders fire coach Rivera as new ownership begins making changes

BY STEPHEN WHYNO
ASSOCIATED PRESS

ASHBURN, Va. — Ron Rivera was fired Monday as coach of the Washington Commanders, a long-anticipated move new owners made as they put their stamp on the NFL franchise they bought last year.

It's just the first of several changes coming to an organization that has won just two playoff games over the past three decades. The fourth and final season under Rivera finished with eight consecutive losses, a 4-13 record and a 38-10 home loss to division-rival Dallas with Washington's home stadium full of Cowboys fans.

"Clearly, we weren't good enough this year," controlling owner Josh Harris said at a news conference at the team's practice facility. "We didn't get it done on the field, and so we've decided to go into a new direction."

Rivera's firing came as no surprise to anyone, including the veteran coach who went 26-40-1 with Washington, including one playoff appearance in 2020 for finishing atop an uncharacteristically weak NFC East at 7-9 and never having a winning season.

If Rivera does not get another head coaching job in the league, he'll finish exactly one game under .500 at 102-103-2 in the regular season.

"We did win an NFC East title in 2020, but we fell short since then, and for that, I am truly disappointed," Rivera said in a statement released by the team. "It wasn't easy and there is a lot more to be done, but I believe we began to change the culture of this organization in meaningful ways."

Co-owners Mitch Rales, Magic Johnson and David Blitzer and well as former NBA executive Bob Myers and ex-Minnesota Vikings GM Rick Spielman will work with Harris in the searches for a head of football personnel and coach. After Dan Snyder hired Rivera four years ago to do both jobs, ownership is now expected to split those responsibilities, though Harris said he'd be flexible given the candidates available — a group that could include Michigan's Jim Harbaugh.

General manager Martin Mayhew and a majority of the front office and coaching staff are also expected to go, as Harris and his fellow owners begin shaping the organization less than six months after buying the team from Snyder. For now, they remain employed while the Commanders go through what Harris described as a "rapid but thorough process."

"This is probably amongst the most important jobs I have as a managing partner," Harris said. "It's important that I do this personally and get this right and that we bring in the right leadership."

Rivera was hired by Snyder on New Year's Day 2020, less than a month after the veteran coach was fired by the Carolina Panthers, who he coached to the Super Bowl in the 2015 season. He was handed control in the aftermath of a chaotic era led by president Bruce Allen, which also included plenty of off-field misconduct that Rivera was forced to answer for as the voice of the organization.

Tumultuous times were the norm, from two team name changes to the allegations of sexual harassment in the workplace before Rivera's arrival coming to light in the summer of 2020. Rivera was diagnosed with a form of skin cancer before that season started, and the well-respected former linebacker working through treatment became a source of inspiration for Washington when it made the playoffs.

"To be with somebody through a crucial part of their life and see how he battled that, that's something you'll never forget," running back Antonio Gibson said. "And he was still there for us throughout that process, so we'll always have love for him."

Away from football, Snyder became the subject of multiple investigations before selling the team last year to Harris' group for a record $6.05 billion.

Harris, Rales, Johnson and others buying the team put the focus back on football, to Rivera's delight. Early in the season, he reveled in a debate about the team's long snapper as a turning point after years of talk about the sagging attendance, off-field chaos and the ownership change.

Indiana University beats Ohio State 71-65

Reneau scores 19 of his 23 in 2nd half

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

BLOOMINGTON — Malik Reneau made 10 of 16 from the field and scored 19 of his 23 points in the second half, Xavier Johnson added 18 points and Indiana beat Ohio State 71-65 Saturday night.

Reneau scored nine points in an 11-2 run, capped by his 3-pointer, that made it 48-all with 12 minutes to play. He made a layup and followed about 30 seconds later with an alley-oop dunk that give Indiana a 10-point lead with 3:34 left. Jamison Battle answered with a 3, Felix Okpara made two free throws and then layup, but missed a free throw before Battle grabbed the offensive rebound. Roddy Gayle Jr. made a layup to cap a 9-1 run that cut Ohio State's deficit to 67-65 with 1:44 left but Reneau answered with a basket 29 seconds later and Johnson made 2 of 4 from the free-throw line the closing seconds to cap the scoring.

Battle had 17 points and nine rebounds for Ohio State (12-3, 2-2 Big Ten), which had its four-game win streak snapped. Zed Key added 11 points. Okpara grabbed 15 rebounds to go with six points.

Indiana (11-4, 3-1) rebounded from an 86-70 loss at Nebraska. The Hoosiers were outrebounded 49-27 — including 22-7 on the offensive glass — but committed a season-low four turnovers and tied the season best with eight steals.

Johnson was fouled as he hit 3-pointer and converted the four-point play with 47 seconds left in the first half and made two free throws 38 seconds later to give Indiana a one-point lead. Zed Key answered with two free throws to make it 37-36 at halftime, Okpara opened the second half with a dunk, Gayle followed with a three-point play and Battle hit a 3 to stretch the lead to nine with 18 minutes remaining.

Ohio State plays host to No. 21 Wisconsin on Wednesday. Indiana visits Rutgers on Tuesday (TV: Live on Peacock at 7 p.m.).

Pitt beat Cards a 4th-straight time 83-70

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Blake Hinson scored 21 points, Zack Austin added 20, and Pittsburgh defeated Louisville a fourth straight time 83-70 on Saturday.

Freshman Carlton Carrington added 16 points, six rebounds and five assists for the Panthers (10-5, 1-3 ACC).

Mike James made five 3-pointers and led Louisville with 23 points. Skyy Clark and Curtis Williams scored 11 each and Kaleb Glenn added 10 for the Cardinals (5-9, 0-3).

A 3-pointer by Jorge Diaz Graham put Pitt up by 12 points five minutes into the second half. A couple of minutes later, Hinson made three free throws for the second time in the game, giving the Panthers a 55-41 lead.

James then hit three 3-pointers for nine consecutive Louisville points, but the Cardinals only got within 57-50. Pittsburgh scored the next 10 points and the Panthers led by at least 13 points for the remainder.

The Panthers made five 3-pointers in the first 10 minutes of the game, racing out to a 23-14 lead. Hinson was fouled on a 3-point attempt and made all three from the line to give Pittsburgh a 12-point lead at the 8-minute mark. James hit a layup and added a 3-pointer to get Louisville within three points, but Diaz Graham made five free throws in the final 2-plus minutes to keep the Panthers ahead 40-34 at the break.

This was the Panthers' first win this season when shooting a lesser percentage than their opponent. Louisville shot 51% to Pitt's 46%. Pittsburgh made 14 of 23 two-point attempts but was 12 of 34 from 3-point distance.

Pitt's win continues a shift in the all-time series between the two teams. The Panthers have won four straight after previously losing 17 of 18 dating back to 2011. Louisville leads the series 21-10, including 12-3 at home.

Louisville announced on Thursday that freshman center Dennis Evans will not be medically cleared to compete for the Cardinals moving forward although he remains a member of the program at this time.

Evans, a 7-foot-1 freshman from Riverside, California, hadn't suited up for a game since a Nov. 29 win against Bellarmine. The 18-year-old was sidelined due to what the team Louisville plays at Miami on Wednesday (TV: Live on ACCN at 7 p.m.).

Tatum, Brown power Celtics to win over Pacers

BY CHRIS GOFF
ASSOCIATED PRESS

INDIANAPOLIS — Jayson Tatum scored 38 points, making a season-high eight 3-pointers, and Jaylen Brown added 31 points as the Boston Celtics beat the Indiana Pacers 118-101 on Saturday night, snapping the Pacers' six-game winning streak.

Tatum, who also had 13 rebounds and six assists, combined with Brown for 27 of the Celtics' 46 baskets on a night they shot 51% from the field and never trailed.

"(Indiana) is really good," Boston coach Joe Mazzulla said. "When we play connected basketball, with physical half-court defense and intentional, poised offense, we play better, and that's kind of what we did."

Boston, which came into the game third in the NBA in field-goal percentage defense (.449) and third in rebound rate, limited the Pacers to a season-low point total and outrebounded them 70-42.

Bennedict Mathurin led Indiana with 20 points while All-Star Tyrese Haliburton finished with 17 points, seven assists, six rebounds and five steals.

"We missed a lot of shots," Haliburton said. "They're a really good defensive team, but we shot a lot of shots that we like. Just didn't capitalize on them."

Boston held a 29-17 advantage at the end of the opening period, the Pacers' lowest-scoring first quarter of the season. The Celtics opened up a 16-point lead in the second quarter and led 58-49 at halftime despite not attempting a free throw in the half. Tatum and Brown shot a combined 16 of 27 for 37 points before intermission.

"Me and Joe watch a lot of film together," Tatum said. "It's just finding ways to be aggressive. Play in space. Play off actions."

Indiana cut its deficit to 84-81 entering the fourth quarter, but the Celtics led by as many as 19 in the final quarter and cruised down the stretch. Boston received only six minutes from starting center Kristaps Porzingis, who left the game due to an eye laceration.

It was the latest chapter in an eventful season series thus far.

In the first meeting, on Nov. 1 in Boston, the Celtics beat the Pacers 155-104 as Haliburton sat out due to injury. Boston's point total was the franchise's highest since 1959. In a hotly contested rematch on Dec. 4, Indiana prevailed 122-112 to knock the visiting Celtics out of the NBA's inaugural in-season tournament behind Haliburton's first career triple-double.

Indiana played without starting shooting guard Bruce Brown (bone bruise in right knee) and reserve guard Andrew Nembhard (back sprain)

Woods, Nike end partnership after more than 27 years

BY DOUG FERGUSON
AP GOLF WRITER

Tiger Woods is no longer a Nike athlete after 27 years, ending a partnership between the swoosh and golf's biggest star and raising questions about the future of both in the sport.

Woods in a social media post thanked Nike co-founder Phil Knight for his "passion and vision" that brought Nike and the Nike Golf partnership with Woods together.

"Over 27 years ago, I was fortunate to start a partnership with one of the most iconic brands in the world," Woods wrote. "The days since have been filled with so many amazing moments and memories, if I started naming them, I could go on forever."

Mark Steinberg, his agent at Excel Sports, confirmed the end of the deal that began in 1996 when Woods turned pro and within eight month had already won four times and shattered records in a watershed Masters victory.

"It was time for the next chapter," Steinberg told The Associated Press. "Amazing run. Great partnership."

Nike also posted to social media, saying in a photo, "It was a hell of a round, Tiger."

"Tiger, you challenged your competition, stereotypes, conventions, the old school way of thinking," the Nike post was captioned. "You challenged the entire institution of golf. You challenged us. And most of all, yourself. And for that challenge we're grateful."

Woods signed a five-year deal worth $40 million when he turned pro in 1996 after his unprecedented third straight U.S. Amateur title.
